Following the presentation of public testimony, Debra D. Carey, Interim Chief Executive Officer, provided the following comments regarding staffing challenges relating to the Covid-19 pandemic.

I want the Board and the public viewing this meeting to understand that staffing is a challenge for hospitals across the region and across the country. This is not unique to Cook County Health. And it is not unique to nurses. Dozens of hospital positions are required in the fight against COVID.

The second COVID-19 surge is on us. Since June, we have discussed how we can respond to a second surge. We must function within the limits of our financial resources which impacts our ability to onboard supplemental staff that may be needed.

There have been countless media stories – literally hundreds in recent weeks - with hospital leaders indicating that their capacity is not limited by their bed count rather by staffing. And most notably nurses but also respiratory therapists and lab techs to name a few others.

Adding to this is the fact that this is not a regional surge like we saw in the Spring. This is a national surge. The staffing challenges across the country have led CDC to issue guidelines allowing both exposed and infected healthcare workers to work if staffing shortages compromise safe care. We have seen this operationalized in North Dakota when hospitals reached 100% capacity and did not have enough frontline workers to keep up with the demand. We hope that we will not get to this point.

We have been able to mobilize approximately 50 agency nurses but please understand that agency nurses are leaving some assignments for assignments that pay more. The going hourly rate ten days ago was approximately $130/hour. This week, that rate is closer to $200/hour. But having a contract with agencies doesn’t guarantee the agency can recruit nurses or that they will stay and this is seemingly what is happening across the industry and here at Cook County Health.

We have had a number of agency nurses who have left the jail in recent weeks for better paying assignments in other states. Some hospitals are even reporting that nurses are resigning to take agency positions knowing that they can get hired full time when the pandemic is over. We also have heard that more profitable hospitals are paying these high rates to nurses to stay home and be available when they are needed. Some hospitals are paying nurses $4,000/week and some are providing $10,000 signing bonuses. We are hearing from systems with more resources that even offering bonuses is not always effective because nursing and clinical staff are tired.
II. Electronically Submitted Public Speaker Testimony (continued)

Cook County Health cannot pay bonuses or afford to hire agency nurses in anticipation of a surge. And for that matter, most safety net hospitals have a very hard time competing in this environment. This should be viewed as another example of health inequity.

Lastly, I want to reiterate what we have said since the beginning of this pandemic. Our first and highest priority is the jail. You will recall that in the Spring, significant efforts to release detainees brought the population down to approximately 4,000. This better accommodated social distancing and was a key component in our ability to contain the virus.

Today, the population stands at 5,500. The positivity rate has increased to nearly 5% in the last week...the highest it has been since May. We still have our robust testing protocols in place. In fact, we are testing well over a thousand detainees a week. But having 1,500 more detainees limits the Sheriff’s ability to provide ideal social distancing. We are working around the clock to bring in nurses and other support staff to staff the areas that were closed in recent months but are now reopened to house infected detainees. We have significantly reduced ambulatory services and are working to redeploy staff, primarily nurses but others as well. We are also aggressively seeking staffing through agency contracts but the virus is not waiting until staffing resources show up.

In the spring of 2020, we were fortunate to have supplemental staff for the jail from the state’s agency contract. We do not have this resource at this time.

In the end, should the situation at the jail require more resources than we can mobilize through agency or shifting nurses from CCH outpatient clinics, we will have no choice but to pull staff from Stroger and Provident. This domino effect will result in the need to limit hospital-based services which we obviously don’t want to do. Other hospitals will be forced to take patients that would have come to Stroger hospital. A large number of these patients will be undocumented and uninsured – the very patients are mission envisions us caring for.

We are grateful to our frontline staff for their commitment. We appreciate that this situation is not ideal but it is the current reality in our country. We need to work together and move forward to care for our patients the best we can. We will continue to keep the oard apprised but want you to know that we are working every avenue to bring in enough staffing to provide safe patient care.
